

Saving Face(time)

A workshop for better navigating WFH life

Workshop Date:

March 24, 2021; 1:00 – 3:30 PM

Registration deadline:

March 22, 2021

Tuition: $125; Members & employees of Inforum Corporate Investors: $100

Framework

- 2.5 hour virtual workshop
- Small and large group discussion and networking
- Research and information-based pre-work to set the tone for discussions
- Class size limited for optimum learning, discussion, and networking

Effective teams need time to get to one know another to best work together. Remote work can make this difficult. But out of sight doesn't have to mean out of mind.

As we continue to adapt to the WFH world, this workshop gives you tools to address the challenges of working remotely, especially those surrounding the lack of facetime and chance encounters.

The session provides tips on how to meet some of the unique challenges of being out of sight of leadership and your team, tips for managing and working with virtual teams, how to recreate "chance" encounters and how to maximize your virtual meetings.

Saving Face(time) is a virtual discussion-based program that tackles the following topics:

- What passive face time is and how it impacts career trajectory
- Identifying and overcoming unexpected challenges that accompany remote work
- How to get noticed
- When self-promotion is the right thing to do

Enroll here

Questions? Contact Lorrena Black, VP, Leadership Development LBlack@inforummichigan.org

About Inforum Virtual Workshops: Inforum Workshops are virtual programs with Inforum original content, featuring deep dives into specific topics. These sessions are interactive, skills-based, and seek to fill information gaps among specific groups as a means of enhancing work experiences and career trajectories.